

LZT Launches Collaboration Server®

News Release

Enterprise 2.0 Collaboration Server®

7th of May 2008- Perth, Australia

Level Zero Technologies is pleased to announce the general release of its Enterprise 2.0 – Collaboration Server®. The Collaboration Server® is part of a family of real time collaboration and communications (RTCC) solutions offering an advanced productivity environment for innovative organizations.

Collaboration Server® is delivering major productivity improvements with its Enterprise 2.0 architecture. Features include a robust hardware platform with industry leading open and commercial software components. The Collaboration Server® is the first enterprise-class collaboration product to combine the latest content creation tools with community-driven intelligence.

An intuitive and integrated suite of social productivity tools are inbuilt - including discussion forums, wiki documents, moderated blogs, individual personalisation, powerful location and search capabilities, shared projects, RSS feeds, and much more. As well, collaboration and knowledge sharing within the organisation are encouraged through the use of a ratings system, user reputation, tagging, workflow, voting and RSS (Real Simple Syndication) feeds.

This results in better products and services, faster processes and a more connected workforce that is able to collaborate together without time or location limitations. It is available in two versions:

Collaboration Server® - Enterprise

Provides an internal collaboration environment for organisations seeking an easy and productive way for all employees and interested parties, to work with each other. It assists in eliminating redundant conversations, meetings, emails and opens doors to new co-workers, partners, and customers ensuring growth initiatives in a competitive environment.

For more information, please visit - Enterprise

Collaboration Server® - Community

Enables organisations of all sizes to easily build and promote successful public-facing “online communities” that maximize the interaction from both existing and potential new customers dramatically improving the results from satisfaction initiatives.

For more information, please visit - Community

About Level Zero Technologies:

Level Zero Technologies has taken the concept of Enterprise 2.0 and developed a range of complimentary solutions that fulfill the need for unified real time collaboration and communications within enterprises. We have brought together technologies that address collaboration, instant messaging and voice services to enable organizations of any size to share the benefits of a social productivity environment. These solutions are highly scaleable and can operate standalone or be seamlessly integrated as an organisation grows its understanding and use of Enterprise 2.0. technologies.

For further information, please contact: Mark Foley – Marketing Director

LZT Launches Collaboration Server®

Email – markf@lzt.com.au Telephone: 08 9467 4999 or visit www.lzt.com.au